As authors of the paper, we greatly appreciate the thorough and constructive feedback provided during the review process in the WSEAS Transactions on Business and Economics. The reviewers offered valuable insights that helped us refine our work. Key suggestions included clarifying the primary objective of the paper, improving the problem formulation by adding more details on the significance of the research, and providing a clearer description of the digital WCPII application. Additionally, the inclusion of a brief literature review and a discussion of the challenges faced during development were recommended to strengthen the academic foundation of the study.

The reviewers also suggested streamlining certain sections for clarity, such as the Distribution Management indicator, and proposed outlining specific areas for future research. These recommendations, along with the suggestion to revise the conclusion for better impact and maintain reader engagement through varied sentence structures, have significantly contributed to enhancing the overall quality of the paper.
